PATENTS.

PATENTS
Obtained for new inventions, or for improvements on old ones; for medical or other compounds, trademarks and labels. Caveats, Assignments, Interferences, Appeals, Suits for Infringements, and all cases arising under the Patent Laws, promptly attended to. Inventions that have been rejected by the Patent Office may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Department, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can make closer searches, and secure Patents more promptly, and with broader claims, than those who are remote from Washington.

INVENTORS send us a model or sketch of your device; we make examinations and advise as to patentability, free of charge. All correspondence strictly confidential. Prices low, and no charge unless Patent is secured. We refer in Washington, to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. Key, Rev. F. D. Power, The German American National Bank, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Representatives in Congress, and especially to our clients in every State in the Union and in Canada. Address: C. A. SNOW & CO., Opposite Patent Office, Washington D. C.

YELLOW FEVER.

NINE NEW CASES AND SIX DEATHS AT MEMPHIS.

AND FOUR CASES AND ONE DEATH AT CONCORDIA.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., September 19.—Eight new cases have been reported to the Board of Health.

Three deaths have occurred since last evening.

The Howard association has telegraphed to Concordia, Miss., asking if assistance is needed.

J. W. Preston, chairman of the citizens' committee, Chicago, telegraphs the Howard association to draw for another $1,000.

NIGHT REPORT.

MEMPHIS, September 19.—Eleven cases in all, nine white and two colored, were reported to-day, three reported this afternoon.

Three additional deaths have occurred.

RULE NUMBER SIX.

The following is the opinion of State Attorney-General Benj. J. Lea, as telegraphed to-day to Dr. J. D. Plunkett, president of the State Board of Health at Nashville:

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., September 19, 1879.
To Dr. J. D. Plunkett, President of the State Board of Health, Nashville:

In reply to your letter asking my opinion by telegram whether the State Board of Health has legal authority to enact such a rule as No. 6, which reads: "No lint or ruled cotton will be allowed to enter Memphis during the epidemic." It is my opinion that the Board of Health has the power to enact such rules and regulations as will prevent a spread of the disease, even to the prevention of all travel.

and the interruption of all commerce, if the spread of the disease cannot be otherwise arrested. The primary object of the law is to prevent the spread of the disease. If this can be done by restriction on travel and commerce the board should so act. If it cannot be thus prevented, then in order to arrest it they may stop all travel and communication with the infected district, except such as may be necessary to afford relief to the infected district. The board has the right to enact rule number six if in their judgment it was necessary to prevent a spread of the disease.

YELLOW FEVER AT LEBANON, N.H.
LEBANON, N. H., September 19.—Intense excitement prevails over a case of yellow fever. Anthony H. Gray is the victim. He returned Thursday from a sea voyage.

AT CONCORDIA.
NEW ORLEANS, September 19.—A Greenville, Miss., special reports four new cases and one death.

When you see a bright baby pleased with itself and everybody else, be sure that Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup has been used. Only 25 cents a bottle.

WHAT AILS YOU?—Is it a disordered liver giving you a yellow skin or costive bowels, which have resulted in distressing Piles or do your Kidneys refuse to perform their functions? If so your system will be clogged with poisons. Take a few doses of Kidney-Wort and you'll feel like a new man—nature will throw off every impediment and each organ will be ready for duty.

For the Sunday Bulletin.
IN MEMORY OF GEORGIE DAVIDSON.

(NEPHEW OF MRS. LIZZIE TRING, INSCRIBED TO THE DECEASED OTHER.)

Only a step through the darkness
To the land that is always light,
Where our loved ones call the blossoms,
That bloom by the river so bright.

Though we see the death dust gather
On the brow of the one we love,
We know the angels are watching
By the gates of the city above.

Dear Georgie, thy blue-eyed darling,
The child that to thee was so fair,
Is now but a dreamless sleeper—
Death's dew on his curling hair.

We know that we are but pilgrims,
As on through the valley we go;
The flowers we gather are fading
And our ship-wrecked hopes lie low.

But upon the mountain's summit
Nevermore the pure blossom fades—
Where the tendrils of love entwined,
We shall find not the midnight shades.

Our father who sits in his glory,
Who gave the dear child to thy trust,
Hath witnessed thy bitter weeping
Above the frailtomb of dust.

He knoweth thy pain and yearning,
He heeds the mother's sad tears—
Will give thee the balm of comfort:
Soothe thy haunting dreams, and thy fears.

Our shepherd upon the mountain,
Doth fold our lost lambs to his breast—
Then dry all thy tears, sad mother,
In the shepherd's arms he will rest.

Oh! lift up thy head, now drooping,
There is work for thy hands—be it done!
The shepherd leads by still waters,
And tenderly cares for thy son.

We know that thy dream is broken—
But we all do fade as the flowers—
They bloom, then fade in their beauty,
And their lives are akin to ours.

KATE W.

For the Sunday Bulletin.
TOO LATE.

BY MRS. LAURA J. RITTENHOUSE.

We sit and sew in silence, while our hot tears fall
Upon some garment fashioned for the dead,
And sighing oft, oft thinking over all
The dear traits of the one forever dead.

We feel a twinge of conscience like a pain
Shoot through our hearts, at each remembered time,
When in our hurry after worldly gain,
We did not listen to the tender chime.

Off friendship's bells, but hurried quickly by,
With cool "good morning," or a careless nod,
Remembering when too late the heavy eye,
The weary feet that seemed with sorrow shod.

We think perchance a kindly word or smile,
Might have up-lifted the desponding heart
Bowed down by petty cares, and cheered awhile
The friend so soon alas! from us to part.

And so we sit and sew and sadly weep,
A thousand vain regrets, like stinging bees
Swarming about us, till we long for sleep
To fold us in her arms and give us ease.

We think of all the pleasant helpful things
We might have done to make life's bitter, sweet;
Each unkind word that to our memory clings,
And burns us with a never-cooling heat.

We make perchance, of flowers pure and white,
An anchor or a crown or fragrant cross
Longing, the while, for just one ray of light,
To cheer our hearts, so sad from this great loss.

Yet ever while we work comes back the thought,
"Oh! had I only placed a bud or leaf
Within her daily crown of life, or brought
My shoulder to her cross, my grief

Would lose its darkest shade. Perchance if I
Had helped to fill with sunshine the frail life,
And softened with my friendship all the dry,
Hard road that wounded the poor feet, while strife
And discord jarred the quivering nerves, my friend
Might have grown stronger, and lived on for years
And not as now, be dead, while thus I bend
Above my work, half blinded by my tears."

So oft we sit when all too late, and mourn
The chances that have daily slipped away,
Of healing up some wound by sorrow torn,
Or sending in dark lives a silvery ray.

Oh! friends, let sunny smiles rise to our lips,
And cheerful words, and thoughtful loving deeds
Greet those we meet, lest Death, the frost king, nips
The precious flowers, and leaves us naught but weeds.

HOW LITTLE CAN A PERSON LIVE ON?

This question is one of those most frequently asked, especially in these times. It is often put in reference to a family, also, by some young persons with a view to matrimony. Then the inquiry is: On how small an income is it safe to get married? No rule on the subject can be laid down; so much depends upon individual tastes and economy. We knew a wealthy merchant who began housekeeping on an income of $300 a year; and yet he managed to lay up something every year. He became rich, and after remaining rich many years, in consequence of the imprudence of a relative associated with him in business, he failed. But instead of taking the benefit of the bankruptcy law and getting rid of his liabilities without paying them, as he easily might have done, he went resolutely to work, and through his indomitable energy and strict economy he paid off all his debts, and finally died in independent circumstances. Now, many young men in the same position in life would find the income on which he got married and laid up money insufficient for their tailor's bill; yet this gentleman dressed with a scrupulous nicety that was the subject of general remark. So it is in everything; one man will make a dollar suffice where another would require at least five dollars or perhaps more, and it is very difficult for the casual observer to tell wherein the difference lies. Perhaps the safest rule is, that whatever your income may be, if you can lay up something from it, then it is safe for you to get married. If you are not able to do this, then, though your income be abstractly speaking, large, you will still find it too small, relatively, to your expenses.
